GULF OIL SPILL LATEST

VO: 26

Submersible robots are making another risky attempt to control the Gulf oil gusher, while the crude on the surface is spreading. BP's latest effort involves a set of tools akin to an oversized deli slicer and garden shears to break away the broken riser pipe. Engineers will then try to position a cap over the well's opening. The risk comes from an increase in the flow of leaking oil. Even if successful, the move will temporarily allow about 20 percent more oil to flow. That's at least 100,000 gallons a day, on top of an estimated 500,000 to 1 million gallons.

OBAMA ECONOMY

VO: 24

President Barack Obama takes to the road again Wednesday to discuss the economy. This time he'll speak at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh. Earlier in the day, he'll meet with Gen. Ray Odierno (oh-dee-EHR'-noh), who leads U.S. forces in Iraq. The president and first lady will host a concert Wednesday evening honoring singer Paul McCartney. He's getting the third Gershwin Prize for Popular Song from the Library of Congress.

CANCER WILL KILL 13.2 MILLION A YEAR BY 2030: U.N.

VO: 20

Cancer will kill more than 13.2 million people a year by 2030, almost double the number who died from the disease in 2008, the United Nations' cancer research agency said on Tuesday. The International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC) also said that almost 21.4 million new cases of the disease will be diagnosed annually in 2030.

CHOCOLATE MAY CUT CHOLESTEROL BUT ONLY IN SOME PEOPLE:

VO: 23

Eating chocolate could bring down cholesterol levels -- but only in small amounts and only in some people, according to an analysis of eight studies. Dr. Rutai Hui of the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and Peking Union Medical College in Beijing and colleagues found chocolate only helped people who already had risk factors for heart disease and only when consumed in modest amounts.

OBAMA-ARIZONA GOVERNOR

VO: 21

Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer is hoping she and President Barack Obama can agree on solutions to improve border security when they meet Thursday in Washington. Brewer said Wednesday that she wants to know how Obama's plan to deploy up to 1,200 National Guard troops to the border with Mexico will affect Arizona and what else he has in mind to tighten border security. She says she'll make a pitch for her own proposal calling for more troops on the border, deployment of helicopters and surveillance drones and complete a border fence. Brewer says she anticipates the state's controversial law targeting illegal immigration will be discussed. She was noncommittal when asked whether she would urge Obama not to file a lawsuit challenging the law.

GULF OIL SPILL LATEST

VO: 27

BP fumbled its latest underwater experiment with the wild Gulf gusher -- just like every other endeavor the company has tried to fix the nation's worst oil spill and BP's chief executive said the company wasn't fully prepared for the disaster. First, a 100-ton, four-story box couldn't contain the spill because icelike crystals clogged the top. Then, a straw-like device that actually did capture crude was inconsistent at best. The supposed top kill -- shooting heavy mud and junk into the well -- couldn't overcome the pressure of the oil. And the most recent risky gambit ran into trouble a mile under the sea Wednesday when a diamond-tipped saw became stuck after slicing through about half of the blown-out well.

GULF SPILL-COMMISSION

VO: 16

The Associated Press has learned the president will appoint two global warming experts to the commission investigating the Gulf oil spill.

One of them last month wrote about how the country should redouble its efforts to lessen its dependence on oil following the oil spill.

OIL SPILL LATEST

VO: 25

BP made promising strides in its latest bid to capture some of the oil spewing from its ruptured deep-sea well in the Gulf of Mexico, while President Barack Obama called off an overseas trip and prepared for another visit Friday to the spill-stricken U.S. Gulf Coast. After failing days ago to plug the well, BP Plc managed Thursday to shear away the gushing well pipe a mile below the ocean surface, then lowered a containment cap over the jagged hole left atop the crippled wellhead assembly in its latest bid to curtail the oil flow.

MEDITERRANEAN DIET HELPS EXISTING HEART DISEASE, TOOVO: 22

Eating a Mediterranean-style diet can help heart patients stay healthy, new research from Greece shows. This eating pattern, which includes lots of fruits and vegetables, nuts, vegetable oils, low-fat dairy products, legumes, whole grains, and fish, has been shown to help shield people from heart disease and may also ward off certain cancers, Dr. Christina Chryschoou of the University of Athens and her colleagues note in their report.

GULF OIL PILL & OBAMA ON GULFVO :23

Residents along the Gulf Coast are increasingly realizing it's going to be a long time before their home areas are what they used to be. BP says the cost of the company's response to the oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico has reached about $1.25 billion. The figure company announced the total in a news release Monday. BP says the figure does not include $360 million for a project to build six sand berms meant to protect Louisiana's wetlands from spreading oil.

HISPANICS GRAD RATESVO :27

More Hispanic students are enrolling in college, but a disproportionate number drop out with debt instead of degrees. At the average college or university, 51 percent of Hispanic students earn a bachelor's degree in six years, compared to 59 percent of white students, according to a conservative think tank. But authors of a January report from The Education Trust and other researchers have found that what colleges do for their students matters. UC-Riverside has a six-year graduation reate of 64 percent among whites and Hispanics. The most recent numbers for Whittier show 63 percent of Hispanic students graduated compared to 58 percent.

GULF OIL SPILL

VO: 25

The ongoing oil spill and how much crude is spewing into the Gulf of Mexico remains a focus on Capitol Hill. Congressman Edward Markey says BP's lowball numbers early on clearly were wrong. A House panel that's looking for ways to clean up oil spills hears today from actor Kevin Costner. The "Waterworld" star has tens of millions of dollars invested in a centrifuge he says can clean oil from more than 200-thousand gallons of water a day.

OBAMA GULF OIL SPILL

VO: 23

President Barack Obama is focusing on the Gulf oil spill for a good part of his day. In the morning, he will be briefed on the spill.

The president will then meet with Senate and House leaders from both parties at the White House to discuss the economy and the oil spill. In the afternoon, the president will offer his condolences to family members of the 11 workers killed in the April 20 explosion and fire on the Deepwater Horizon oil rig. Later, Obama will meet separately with Sen. Arlen Specter and Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner in the Oval Office. After those meetings, the president will discuss energy reform with business leaders and energy experts.

HISPANICS' APPROVAL OF OBAMA FALLS IN POLL

VO: 27

President Obama's approval rating among Hispanics has dropped 12 percentage points since the start of the year, according to a Gallup poll released Tuesday. In May, 57 percent of Hispanics approved of the president's job performance, down from 69 percent in January. Blacks' and whites' approval ratings of the president, however, have stayed relatively constant through the first five months of 2010, the poll also showed. The numbers reflect Hispanics' growing frustration over Obama's inaction on immigration reform, said Rep. Charlie Gonzalez, D-Texas.

"You have large segments of the Latino population who have as their No. 1 legislative priority immigration reform," Gonzalez said. "The bottom line is that they haven't seen evidence of the legislation being moved in Congress." Leslie Sanchez, a Republican strategist and CEO of Impacto Group, said that Hispanic voters feel as though the president hasn't kept his promise to pursue immigration legislation.

FORECLOSURES LATEST

VO: 22

The number of foreclosures remains extraordinarily high, but there's some good news amidst the gloom. The number of people facing foreclosure is nearly flat from a year ago. A private foreclosure listing service says one-third fewer people are receiving legal warnings that they could lose their homes. And foreclosures are receding in some of the hardest-hit cities.

OBAMA & FAMILY MEMBERS OIL SPILL

VO: 23

Family members of the 11 men killed in the Gulf oil rig explosion say they're satisfied President Barack Obama and lawmakers will help them get just compensation for their loss. Widows, parents and other relatives spoke at a news conference Thursday with senators who want to change ancient laws that limit their compensation. They met earlier with the president. The family members asked that their loved ones not be forgotten. The father of victim Jason Anderson, Billy Anderson, notes that while wildlife can be saved, the victims of the explosion are gone. President Barack Obama offered condolences.

HEALTH COSTS

VO :24

A consulting firm says U.S. companies anticipate another big increase in medical costs next year and many workers will be expected to pay a bigger share. The PricewaterhouseCoopers report released to The Associated Press says that for the first time, most of the American workforce is expected to have health insurance deductibles of $400 or more. Employees who are asked to pay more through things like higher deductibles help keep cost growth in check because they use less health care.

CANCER COSTS

VO :25

A new study suggests that millions of cancer survivors have put off getting medical care because they couldn't afford it. The researchers estimate that more than 2 million of 12 million U.S. adult cancer survivors did not get one or more needed medical services. The work was based on national surveys that included 6,600 cancer survivors. About 8 percent of the cancer survivors said they had put off getting medical care because of costs. About 10 percent also said they had to forgo filling prescriptions.

JAVIER SIERRA / WASHINGTON, DC
INTERVIEW 5:00MINS.

U.S. President Barack Obama toured the Gulf of Mexico Monday, two days ahead of a crucial showdown with top BP executives over the oil spill that caused the worst environmental disaster in U.S. history. The crisis piled more pressure on beleaguered BP's shares Monday, which fell 10 percent in afternoon trading in London on investor fears about the final bill for the spill and whether BP will pay its quarterly dividend. The shares later clawed back about one percent. Obama will address the nation Tuesday about the spill which may be contained but cannot be stopped until relief wells are completed in August.
